FAQ

Tip: Combine tooth whitening with your dental treatment!

Once prosthetic treatments - such as inlays, crowns or implants - are in place, their color cannot be changed. If you've had orthodontic work done to straighten your teeth, whitening can be the perfect finishing touch.

Is a professional tooth whitening at the dental office safe?

Numerous studies confirm that this whitening method is safe for teeth and gums. Hydrogen peroxide, the key ingredient, has been used successfully in dentistry for decades. When performed by a dental professional, tooth whitening is the safest and most effective option.

How does it work?

Tooth whitening is a process that uses an oxygen reaction to dissolve stains and discoloration in tooth enamel. The procedure is non-invasive to your teeth and gives you a perfect smile. A professional cleaning is recommended prior to any whitening treatment. Our office team can recommend the best choice for you.

Are there any side effects?

Although tooth whitening is generally comfortable, some patients may experience increased sensitivity during or after the procedure, which usually subsides within 1-2 days. If necessary, your dentist can recommend products to reduce tooth sensitivity after treatment. For the best results, please avoid tea, coffee, red wine, cigarettes and similar staining products for at least four hours after your whitening session.

How long do the results last?

With regular brushing, flossing and professional cleanings, your teeth will remain whiter than before treatment for a longer time. A follow-up whitening treatment can be included as part of your preventive care. You can also do a touch-up with home whitening. Our clinic team can recommend the best options for you.
